

Day 1, Saturday February 18, 2017

1: Have some brunch at Nob Hill's intimate bistro Mason Pacific (Restaurant)

Address: 1358 Mason St, San Francisco, CA 94133, USA

About: Enjoy brunch at Mason Pacific, a New American bistro along the Nob Hill cable car line. Elegantly decorated with tan leather banquettes and large windows that let in natural light, it's the perfect setting for your first meal of the day. Start your meal with a hot cappuccino or a refreshing cold brew coffee. Then move on to gourmet-meets-healthy dishes like avocado toast with sesame and herbs, smoked trout with crispy potatoes and braised leeks, or a sourdough waffle with bacon and maple.

3: Explore the nooks and crannies of Chinatown (Activity)

Address: 950 Grant Ave San Francisco 94108

About: San Francisco Chinatown is the largest Chinatown outside of Asia as well as the oldest Chinatown in North America. Despite that, it is still a small area of the city packed full of people many from families from the original immigrants who came over from China by the thousands to seek their fortune in the gold rush. They helped shape the San Francisco that exists today and it is a fascinating neighborhood to explore. There are many tea shops, bakeries, and places to pick up souvenirs. It's a fun place to explore and wander in and out of shops. Tip: Stop by the Golden Gate Fortune Cookie Factory, a tiny hole in the wall where you can see fortune cookies being made and score a free sample!

4: Go to Vital Tea Leaf (Shopping)

Address: 905 Grant Ave, San Francisco, CA 94108, United States

About: One of the best things about Chinatown is a teahouse called Vital Tea Leaf, which has about 300 teas, including white, green, yellow, red and black, and a "try before you buy" model. It also has a resident character who introduces himself to all as Uncle Gee, who is 77, was "born in the ghetto" of Chinatown, and loves telling people what to drink based on their age, gender and state of health. - Jillian Guthrie, SFGate

2: Gourmet Sandwiches at Wooly Pig Cafe (Restaurant)

Address: 205 Hugo St, San Francisco, CA 94122, USA

About: The Wooly Pig Café near UC San Francisco's campus knows how to make a mean sandwich. This laid-back coffee shop and sandwich spot is known for local favorites like the "Briny Egg," (an herb-y egg salad sandwich with capers, cornichons, and anchovies) and the eponymous "Wooly Pig," (braised pork belly). We honestly couldn't pick a favorite sandwich if we had to, so go early and see for yourself what looks good before they sell out.

3: Coffee & Cocktails at The Interval (Cafe)

Address: 2 Marina Blvd, San Francisco, CA 94109, United States

About: This is a fantastic hidden cocktail and coffee place in Fort Mason with a modern Scandinavian-like setting, great views, and a librarylike vibe. The Interval also serves small bites, including a selection of spreads served with La Panzanella Croccantini, beef jerky, meat sticks, pickles, and ice cream sandwiches. Just don't eat everything together.

4: Have some Cocktails and Mexican food at the trendy Flores (Restaurant)

Address: 2030 Union Street, San Francisco, CA, San Francisco, CA 94123, USA

About: Enjoy a meal at Flores, a trendy restaurant situated on Union Street. They specialize in combining traditional Mexican cuisine with high-brow cocktails, both of which compliment with the buzzy atmosphere. Grab a seat at one of their high-top tables then give yourself some time to browse the menu. It's hard not to be intrigued by fried masa dumplings, white fish ceviche, braised beef empanadas, and white bean frijoles. Pair your dishes of choice with the Curandera cocktail, a stellar mix of tequila, mezcal, agave, ginger, and lemon.

5: Authentic dim sum at Great Eastern (Restaurant)

Address: 649 Jackson St, San Francisco, CA 94133, USA

About: This dim sum house is a bit gritty but it's considered by many locals as the best place in Chinatown for the popular Cantonese fare. New to dim sum? No worries, their extensive menu includes photos. Can't miss dishes include soup dumplings and green beans in XO sauce. This place is popular, so there may be a line, but it's worth it.

6: Authentic Sardinian Fare at La Ciccìa (Restaurant)

Address: 291 30th St, San Francisco, CA 94131, United States

About: La Ciccìa is a rustic, family-run Italian restaurant on the edge of Noe Valley specializing in dishes from Sardinia. Owners Massimiliano Conti and Lorella Degan are totally committed to taking you on a culinary journey through the pungent flavors of their native island - don't miss the spicy octopus stew, the sea urchin pasta, and the unusual wine selection. The warm service will make you feel like you're part of the tribe, though the cozy dining room can sometimes feel cramped – be sure to reserve ahead.

8: Vibrant Mexican Cuisine at Nopalito (Restaurant)

Address: 1224 9th Ave, San Francisco, CA 94122, USA

About: At the second location of Nopalito, owners Laurence and Allyson Jossel and Jeff Hanak hope not only to replicate favorite dishes but also to build a more complex repertoire. At the original Nopalito, they are restrained by the size of the kitchen; on Ninth Avenue, there's room downstairs so they can butcher whole lambs, pigs and goats, which will find their way upstairs to an expanded menu. The new Nopalito is every bit as good as its predecessor. You can get familiar items such as the crisp, seductively greasy gordita ($4.50) stuffed with sweet sauced beef brisket, chorizo and cabbage; and the panucho ($4.50) piled high with chicken stained red from achiote, with black beans, cabbage, pickled red onions and the kick of salsa habanera. Most combinations have their own salsa that brings out the best in the other ingredients. It could be salsa de miltomate with the gordita; salsa de morita and tomatillo with the fish taco ($4.75); or pico de gallo with the carne asada ($16.50). The posole ($12), a favorite at the original restaurant, is just as good here. But I might have found a soup that's even better - caldo tlalpeno ($10), a rich chicken broth filled with chunks of carrots, garbanzo, florets of cauliflower, green and yellow wax beans and chunks of queso fresco. There are also different dishes, including trout ($16.50) on a bed of pumpkin seed puree that also coats the Christmas lima beans underneath. The fish is supple, the beans fleshy and the sauce spicy from serrano chiles. A dynamic triad.-SFGate
