

Day 1, Friday July 28, 2017

1: Coffee and baked goods at A Padaria Portuguesa (Cafe)

Address: R. Mouzinho da Silveira 2, 1250 Lisboa, Portugal

About: A Padaria Portuguesa is a 100% local bakery-café serving 20 kinds of fresh bread daily, along with sandwiches, salads, and classic sweets. Don't miss the brioche or the pasteis de nata, and if the weather's good, sit at one of the pretty sidewalk tables on Rua Mouzinho da Silveira. A great spot for breakfast or brunch.

2: Stroll around Principe Real (Activity)

Address: Príncipe Real, 1250-096 Lisboa, Portugal

About: North of Miradouro de São Pedro de Alcantara is the district of Principe Real, essentially an extension of Bairro Alto, with a pleasant square and shady garden. In the center of the square is a cafe and some exotic trees, including a hundred-year-old cedar that looks like a giant umbrella, all surrounded by colorful 19th-century mansions. At number 26 is Ribeiro da Cunha Palace, a pink and white building dating from 1877, whose architect wanted to create a romantic evocation of the Moorish world. It includes horseshoe arch windows, pyramidal spires, and circular, Oriental-style domes topped by pinnacles, now housing a shopping gallery called Embaixada. This is also Lisbon's gay and lesbian district with several gay bars and clubs, and the area with the most antique shops and galleries, especially along Rua da Escola Politecnica and Rua Dom Pedro V. Going down Rua de São Marçal leads to another charming leafy square and garden, the Praça das Flores, right in the center of this peaceful district of colorful town houses. -GoLisbon.com

5: Authentic ceviche at A Cevicheria (Restaurant)

Address: R. Dom Pedro V 129, 1250-096 Lisboa, Portugal

About: A Cevicheria's main specialisation is its wonderful ceviche, a traditional Peruvian dish made with raw salmon, octopus or shrimp in a citrus juice. The chefs prepare food right in front of the customers' eyes in the open kitchen, and visitors are welcome to indulge in the visual process. The interior is amiable, decorated with Portuguese tiles and a huge octopus hanging from the ceiling, which attracts the curious glances of passers-by on the street. Customers praise this little Peruvian heaven, saying that the meals remind you of pieces of art with elegant decorations. But this art is edible and has a distinctive Latin American flavor.-Theculturetrip.com

Address: Rua da Escola Politécnica 4, 1250-099 Lisboa, Portugal

About: In the heart of Príncipe Real, Bettina e Niccolo is a hip café and chocolate oasis where they source their beans from a family plantation in São Tomé and Príncipe. Besides their terrific bean to bar creations (with 75%, 85% or 100% cacao), they also serve 100% cacao sorbet, hot chocolate, and delectable desserts like a sea salt-sprinkled double layer chocolate cake with caramel cream filling. The coffee here is great, too, and when you order an espresso, you get a generous piece of chocolate to go with it.

10: Wine and small plates at Cantinho Lusitano (Restaurant)

Address: Rua dos Prazeres 52, 1200-355 Lisboa, Portugal

About: Cantinho Lusitano specializes in fine wine and small, flavor-packed Portuguese dishes. The petiscos (small eats) style of dining encourages sampling to a variety of Portuguese delicacies, such as baked goat's cheese drizzled with honey, breaded meatballs dipped in sweet jam, and fluffy grilled fish cakes. Finally, we have to give them extra credit for having one of the best desserts in all of Portugal: cottage cheese with pumpkin jam. Ask about their daily specials. Be warned: This place only seats 20, so you absolutely must reserve a table in advance.

11: Seasonal cocktails at Cinco Lounge (Night Time)

Address: R. Ruben A. Leitão, 1200-329 Lisboa, Portugal

About: Cinco is an upmarket bar with a trendy international vibe and an impressive drinks menu. Their mission? To create a sophisticated cocktail culture in the city of Lisbon where absolutely anything goes. The menu blends classic and contemporary drinks. New cocktails are introduced each season, such as the Finders Keepers, with gin, lemongrass, ginger, lime, mint, and ginger beer. Despite the designer lighting and the rich color scheme, there's no dress code, and the music is never too loud for a good conversation.

Address: Parque das Nações, Lisboa, Portugal

About: Parque das Nações is the avant-garde architectural contrast to Lisbon's old historic center. Before it was chosen as the site for the final World Exposition in 1998, this part of Eastern Lisbon was an industrial wasteland. Since then, however, it remains a veritable playground of awe inspiring modern structures, all of which reflect maritime themes (the design of Oriente Train Station evokes a thousand billowing white sails).

4: Cod-lovers lunch at D 'Bacalhau (Restaurant)

Address: Rua Pimenta 43, 1990 Lisboa, Portugal 1990-254

About: D'Bacalhau near the Park of Nations is a waterfront restaurant specializing in seafood specifically cod dishes. Try the Azeitão sheep's milk cheese to start—the cheese comes from a town of the same name just 40 minutes south of Lisbon and while pungent, it is delicious. It's nearly impossible to determine which cod preparation you'll like best, so try a sampler, which allows you to try smaller portions of favorites like Cod to Gomes Sá or the cod cooked in cream. The service here is also fantastic, so you're sure to have a memorable meal.

6: Avant garde upscale dining at Mini Bar Teatro (Restaurant)

Address: R. António Maria Cardoso 58, Lisboa, Portugal

About: Inspired by the modern cuisine at Michelin-starred Tickets in Barcelona, Mini Bar serves innovative and playful small plates in a casual atmosphere. The prolific chef, Jose Alvillez, is one of Lisbon's greatest success stories. Despite being only 35 he has, according to the NYTimes, "probably done more than anyone to nudge his country's cooking into the 21st century, spurred by the food revolution across the border in Spain." Order dishes a la carte or go for the recommended "Epic" tasting menu which is a steal at 48.50 euros. You'll receive a succession of twelve small plates, such as tempura-fried avocado spears with cilantro and kimchi or cured mackerel slices under a smoke-filled glass dome.

7: Hear Fado music at A Tasca do Chico (Night Time)

Address: R. do Diário de Notícias 39, 1200-333 Lisboa, Portugal

About: Head to this tiny Fado bar to get a true taste of Portugese culture. Fado music is powerful and beautiful, and although you probably won't understand the words, there is no doubt you will be moved by the passion of the singers. Tasco is also good for for cheap drinks and snacks, so grab yourself a cold one and squeeze in for a memorable night.
